

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

GMS Language Services® to provide language training at The Swedish Maritime Administration, “Sjöfartsverket”.

Stockholm, SWE; August 11 2009: GMS Language Services, one of the Europe’s premier providers of language and communication services has been selected as a preferred supplier of language and communication training for The Swedish Maritime Administration, “Sjöfartsverket”.

About the agreement: The announced agreement is one step further towards The Swedish Maritime Administration’s goal of better communication and language skills within the organization. “By strengthening the language skills competence of both land and sea personnel, The Swedish Maritime Administration continues to improve safety levels in Swedish waters and optimize the increasing number of international shipping operations occurring in its fairways”, says Greta Linnér, GMS’ Account Manager. “By choosing GMS as a partner the organization ensures that the investment is rapidly turned into concrete results that its employees can use immediately in their day-to-day work lives”, she adds.

About The Swedish Maritime Administration: “Sjöfartsverket” is a public enterprise responsible for keeping the 6,300 nautical miles of Swedish fairways safe and navigable. The organization’s responsibility ranges from waters navigated by commercial ships only to fairways used mostly by leisure boats. “Sjöfartsverket” has today a total of 1,168 employees, 318 of them working at their head office in Norrköping, Sweden.

About GMS Language Services: Offering a comprehensive range of services developed with the focus on results. GMS delivers it’s training across borders with the support of local experts. GMS’ services include language and communication training, coaching, translations and interpretation to corporations and governmental organisations. Spanning 3 continents in over 14 countries GMS continues its expansion without compromising the excellence and professionalism achieved through many years of experience in the field.
